Business Activity Shows Decline

Observations.

By UDELL

A beautiful illustrated volume telling the story of the creation of the American Memorial Chapel in London, dedicated to the 28,000 Americans stationed in British Isles who lost their lives in World War II, has been sent to Mr. and Mrs. H. Hirth of Bay St. Louis. The British publishers are anxious to obtain the names and addresses of the men-of-war so copies of the book can be sent free of cost to them. The card should be addressed to: Col. the Hon. J. J. Astor, The Times London, Inc., 45 East 51st St., New York, N. Y. The book, which bears the title, "Britain's Home to 28,000 American Dead," is prefaced by a message from Churchill and records the circumstances of the building of the American Chapel in war-stricken St. Paul's cathedral as a tribute to the people of Britain. In his message, Churchill stated: "Our two countries parted long ago by war, were brought together again by war in a unity and understanding such as we had never known; through long years of endeavor and endurance we shared all things and though we lost so much we found a lasting friendship. We shall not forget those gallant American soldiers, sailors and airmen who fought with us some in our own ranks, and some as our allies. Those who did not return the debt of our friendship is the fellowship of our two countries, which by their valor they created and by their sacrifice they have preserved."

Inscribed on the honor roll: "Defending freedom from the fierce assault of tyranny they shared the honor and the sacrifice. Though they died before the dawn of victory their names and deeds will long be remembered wherever free men live." On August 23, 1946, Dwight Eisenhower wrote a message that appears in this memorial, stating in part, "that these men and their comrades of all the Allies have a debt to be paid with grateful remembrance of their sacrifice and with the high resolve that the cause for which they died shall live eternally." Included in the volume also is a description of the origin and progress of the idea of the memorial chapel and the dedication services held at St. Paul's on Independence Day, 1951. When those dedication services were held, Eisenhower presented a roll of honor on behalf of the American people bearing the names of the dead, for safe-keeping in the chapel. Stained glass windows in the chapel, which was started in February, 1951 and is hoped to be completed in 1954, will bear the insignia of the 48 states. Mr. and Mrs. Hirth, whose son, Lt. H. H. Hirth, a pilot in the U. S. A. F., was killed March 3, 1945, in France, received the book this week.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors, in this issue of the ECHO, has published a notice to the public warning that any person or persons found guilty of dumping trash, garbage or any other matter on or along the highways and roads of Hancock County will be fined or punished to the extent of the Laws governing such matter. We want to commend the Board on this move. Maybe people will stop using the streets for garbage.

Parents and persons interested in Scouting should attend the Court of Awards Monday night at the Courthouse. These men devote their time to building the characters of our youngsters, and the least parents can do is to show that they are backing them by attending all ceremonies participated in by the Scouts.

Thursday around noon, a large truck tore up the signal light at the head of the bridge and Beach front. In the safety of the public, the City has removed the light from Main and Second streets and a new one is being ordered, which will arrive in a few days, to replace the light at this crossing.

Tells of Plans For SSC Sunday At Alumnae Meet

Approximately 200 members of the Saint Stanislaus Alumnae Association met at the St. Charles Hotel, Sunday, March 15, for the annual banquet. Along with the men many wives and dates of the members attended. Brother Felician, Vice-President of St. Stanislaus, gave an interesting and entertaining talk on his recent stay in Rome. He gave a vivid account of his visit to His Holiness Pius XII. Brother Felician, who is expected to be present at the Consistory of the Cardinals held January 15. He had the pleasure of sitting near the newly named American prelate, Cardinal McIntire, Archbishop of Los Angeles.

He spoke of the political and economic situations in France and Italy. He reported that at the 10,000 Italians turned in their resignations from the Italian Communist party.

Other speakers on the program were Berchmans S. Wilbert, president of the Alumnae Association; Brother Celsus, president of Saint Stanislaus told the membership of the hopes, prayers and plans for the celebration of the Centennial of Saint Stanislaus in 1954 - the erection of an Alumnae Memorial building to house classrooms, an infirmary, and a basement to take care of a clothes room and recreation center for the small boys. It is also planned to have at least 40 private rooms on the second floor for the accommodation of students.

Brother Edmund, Secretary of the Association, outlined a plan for a new edition of the Alumnae Directory. George Seuzeneau, class 1927, was the spokesman for his class which was specially honored on the occasion of its 25th anniversary. Omie F. Kuebel, class 1922, spoke of the building plans for the Centennial. Michael M. Irwin, class 1916, was toastmaster.

James F. Terrell, Class 1892, closely followed by Charles Engle Allain of Jeanerette, Class 1898, and Henry Waguespack, Class 1900.

The Green brothers, Osmond, Class 1906, Justin, Class 1908 and Marion, Class 1914, were present as were Pete, Bernard and Brother Alvin of the Jones family. Frank Beaulieu of 1913 and Bernard Beaulieu of 1919, both from Jeanerette, Louisiana; Milton Relsch of 1919 and his brother Erston.

Everyone present had a grand time and the consensus of opinion was that it was one of the best meetings held in many years.

State College, Miss.—There was an increase in general business activity of about 1 per cent in the Biloxi-Gulfport district when business activity for January, 1953, was compared with that for January, 1952, according to the current issue of the Mississippi Business Review, monthly publication of the Business Research Station of the School of Business and Industry at Mississippi State College.

Following the regular seasonal pattern, there was a drop of approximately 3 per cent when January, 1953, and December, 1952, were compared. There were three indicated increases in bank deposits for the former comparison and three decreases for the latter. Both money orders issued and postal receipts fell below December 1952 for the district as a whole.

The changes in Biloxi placed January 1953 business activity about 3 per cent under last January and 12 per cent under December 1952. The changes in Biloxi for the comparison with January 1952 were bank deposits, 2 per cent; money orders issued, 18 per cent; postal receipts, 24 per cent; telephones in service, 9.5 per cent; electric connection, 6 per cent; and gas connection, 7 per cent.

In Gulfport the comparison with last January placed bank deposits about 13 per cent on the positive side. Postal receipts, money orders issued, telephones in service, and electric connection each showed an increase over last January.

Gas connections were down by 13 per cent for the comparison. The city showed an increase of 8 per cent over January 1952, but a loss of 3 per cent when compared with December 1952.

Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian each had less business activity during January than for the previous January. The decreases in Bay St. Louis were 2 per cent for the comparison with January 1952 and 16 per cent for the comparison with previous month. Pass Christian had a 9 per cent loss when compared with January 1952, but an increase of about 1 percent over December 1952.

Picayune was the only city reporting in the area where data was indicative of a district gain in January over either of the previous periods. January 1953 business activity was 3 per cent in excess of December 1952 and 4 per cent better than a year earlier. There was a nice increase in this city for bank deposits.

Postal receipts fell below December 1952 by 28 per cent. Money orders were 8 per cent short of their December record. However, all four indicators had better records than for the same month a year ago.

The Business Research Station's index to general business activity in the city of Biloxi stood at 676 per cent of the 1939-40 average on January 31, 1953. This was a decline of 80 percentage points from its January 1 position.

Wallace Enters Race For D. A.

TO THE VOTERS OF GEORGE, HARRISON, HANCOCK, JACKSON AND STONE COUNTIES

"I have never had political ambitions and never expected to run for public office. For the past several years, however, I have worked with various groups dedicated to the principles of good law enforcement and the elimination of commercialized gambling. The most successful of these is the Harrison County Crime Commission which I helped to organize shortly after the Senatorial investigation and hearing in the Fall of 1951. I served as its secretary until February 19, 1953, and also as its attorney. As a direct result of the efforts of the Commission, commercial gambling has been largely curbed, and the slot machines in particular have disappeared. We know, however, that no group of private citizens can be completely successful in obtaining law enforcement unless there are law enforcement officers who will perform the duties required of them by law—honestly, and without fear or favor.

My associates and I feel that the voters of the Second Circuit Court Judicial District of Mississippi should be given an opportunity to vote for a candidate for a law enforcement officer whose past actions are their assurance that his campaign pledges will be fulfilled. Consequently, I have agreed to offer myself as a candidate for the office of District Attorney for the Second Circuit Court Judicial District of Mississippi in the special election to be held March 31, 1953.

My only campaign pledge is that I will do my best to enforce every law on the Statute Books of the State of Mississippi. THIS INCLUDES THE LAW PROHIBITING THE SALE AND POSSESSION OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR.

I was born in Mississippi City, February 13, 1912. I was educated in the public schools of Gulfport and Lumberton, and St. Stanislaus College, and obtained my law degree from the Washington College of Law, where I attended night classes while employed by the United States Government. I volunteered for duty in the Navy shortly after graduating from law school in 1951 and served 52 months, mostly in combat areas afloat. I returned to South Mississippi upon my discharge from the Navy in 1946. I have been engaged in the private practice of law in Biloxi since 1948.

I am a member of the Biloxi (Bilby) Wallace and Jane Bronson Wallace of Gulfport. I am married to the former Eleanor Gifford Schwab and we have one son, Michael.

I am a member of the Biloxi Lions Club, the Harrison County Crime Commission, and the First Presbyterian Church of Biloxi, in which I am a Deacon. I belong to no fraternal or political organization and have no commitments other than the pledge I have made in this announcement.

I do not intend to make an extended campaign for this office, but I will welcome the opportunity to talk to any group in the district caring to hear my views on law enforcement in general and the duties of the District Attorney in particular. I earnestly request the vote and support of all of you who desire honest and efficient law enforcement.

Personnel Expert Addresses Rotary

George L. Seuzeneau Jr., chairman of the Mississippi Gulf Council of Public Personnel Officials, addressed the Rotary club Wednesday. He was the guest of Dr. B. L. Ramsey.

Mr. Seuzeneau, administrative officer and senior civilian staff assistant to the Commanding Officer, U. S. Naval Construction Battalion Center, Gulfport, outlined the several naval activities now located at Gulfport and gave a brief outline of the responsibilities, purposes and objectives of these activities.

These activities, the speaker said, include the U. S. Naval Construction Equipment Depot, U. S. Naval Advance Base, Supply Depot and the U. S. Naval Construction Battalion Center, all under the command of Captain C. S. Daily.

The speaker, who was classified in 1941 by the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel, War Manpower Commission, as possessing, "highly technical skills in the field of personnel administration," traced the development of the industrial relations programs in industry. The former instructor in personnel management at Tulane university during 1948 and 1949, enumerated the various types of employee relations programs followed by the Navy in developing its civilian personnel.

Mr. Seuzeneau was commissioned by the Governor of Louisiana in 1942 as a member of the Reemployment Clearing House Committee for New Orleans in collaboration with the Federal Selective Service System for placing returning veterans.

Boyce Hollemann To Address Lions

The Bay St. Louis Lions Club will be host next Monday to the newly appointed District Attorney for the second Circuit District, Boyce Hollemann of Wiggins.

Hollemann, serving an interim appointment by Governor Hugh White, is also a candidate for the post at the March 31 election. The opening came about when Judge Lawrence Corban resigned and Luther Maples was appointed to succeed him. Hollemann was appointed as D. A. until the special election.

Rev. Charles Schultz, president, has announced that all interested citizens may attend the open meeting at Hotel Reed at twelve noon Monday, March 23, for one hour.

Many prominent local people

Last year America learned once again what it means to have an organization that is geared to quick, effective action in time of emergency. Lambert T. Boyd Jr., chairman of 1953 Red Cross drive, stated. Twice within a few weeks major disaster struck wide areas of the country. Disaster workers, both paid and volunteer, were still coping with the human needs caused by the March tornadoes, when the monstrous flood of the Mississippi-Missouri valley basin rolled over hundreds of farms and communities in the Midwest.

Keeping an organization prepared for such emergencies as these is no easy task. It involves carefully drawn plans, continued training of staff, supplies, equipment, and close working relationships with all other agencies and groups that function in time of disaster. Above all, it requires flexibility and thorough organization both locally and nationally, so that unexpected emergencies can be handled without interrupting or lowering the efficiency of the other Red Cross services, he added.

To show you how well the Red Cross meets these requirements consider some of its other accomplishments last April when it was deeply involved with the Midwest floods. In that one month the Red Cross collected over 367,000 pints of blood for military and civilian use. Chapter Home Service acted on 159,000 problems affecting servicemen and veterans and their families and loaned or granted $497,000 in financial assistance. Red Cross field directors in military installations and hospitals acted on 135,000 cases here and overseas and provided $588,000 in financial assistance in emergencies. In that one month—April 1952—19,200 volunteers gave 171,400 hours of service in veterans hospitals, more than 77,000 persons completed training in Red Cross first aid, and nearly 31,000 persons were trained in home nursing.

All these things were done in just 1 month at a time when the organization was conducting one of the biggest disaster operations in its history. And what was done in that month is only a small part of the total accomplishments recorded for the year—accomplishments made possible by the American people serving and giving through the Red Cross.

This program, vital to the welfare and security of the nation, must go on. People will call for the help of the Red Cross—your help—in 1953 as they did in 1952. Answer the call through the Red Cross.

and also visitors from Gulfport are expected to attend. Local guests are being asked to telephone Hotel Reed, so that sufficient preparation can be made.

A note-burning party was held at the Clement R. Bontemps Post 129, American Legion home Tuesday night, March 17. The last three notes paid on the building and pier were burned by Dr. L. Dickinson, Fred Fayard and Douglas Bourgeois. The pier and Legion home are now free of debt.

Doctor Caddy, Picayune, Southern Vice-Commander of the American Legion, spoke on Americanism and the benefits of the Legion to the veterans. He presented a special certificate, issued by State headquarters, to Lucien Kidd, commander of the local post, for outstanding service to the Legion and the community.

Mrs. D. Ziegler and Mrs. L. M. Telhiard, sisters of the late Clement R. Bontemps, who lost his life in World War I, and for whom the local post is named, were presented at the joint meeting of the Legion and Auxiliary. A memorial silence, in tribute to the men killed in service, was observed.

It was announced at the meeting that the club and pier, which were paid for by funds derived from numerous benefits, would be open during the summer months at 10:00 a. m. daily. A buffet supper and dance followed the general meeting.

The organization meeting of the Bay St. Louis Property Owners Association will take place Monday, March 23, at Bay High auditorium at 8:30 p. m.

A charter has been granted to the Property Owners Association and the purpose of the organization meeting is to elect officers and to adopt by-laws. All property owners and residents of this community are eligible for membership. It has been proposed that the annual dues shall be fixed at one dollar per person.

The association is being formed to work for the civic benefit of the city and to work with the city and state officials for the general good of the community. It will be strictly non-political.

All interested citizens are cordially invited to participate.

Circuit Court Renders Verdict; Grand Jury Reports

Jack Craddock and Willie E. Crawford, who were indicted for assault and battery, were bound over to the next term of court scheduled for September.

The case of the State of Mississippi vs. Houston Franklin was continued; and the suit brought by George A. Cuevas et al against the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Mississippi State Highway Commission for damages resulting from the building of a highway in Fenton, was dismissed.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was given in the case of Jeannette Carmichael vs. Johnson Shaw, operating as the Bay Ready-Mix Concrete Company. A motion has been made to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial.

Numerous other cases were set during this term.

The following report was made by the Grand Jury:

To the Honorable Leslie B. Grant, Circuit Judge:

We the Grand Jury empaneled for the regular March, 1953, term of the Circuit Court of Hancock County, Mississippi, having concluded our labors beg leave to make this our final report.

We have been in session three days, have examined 48 witnesses, have investigated 12 cases and have returned four true bills.

We have inspected the County jail and find that the blankets and mattresses used in the jail are in an extremely soiled condition and that immediate steps should be taken to affect a more sanitary condition in the confinement of prisoners.

We have inspected the county courthouse and find that to be well kept and as far as we are able to ascertain the books and records of the various county officials are properly and accurately kept.

We have made an investigation into recent charges that the law existed flagrant violations of our gambling laws in this county and we have called before us the law enforcement officers of this county and it is our finding that while there were a few instances of these violations, that our law enforcement officers have now curbed and completely terminated these violations and these officers have assured us that they will not tolerate any future violations of the law against gambling in this county and will swiftly arrest violators and present them to the court for prosecution.

And now having concluded our labors, we beg to be finally discharged.

Life-size Wood Carving of Last Supper

Courtesy Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, MASS.—All the specialized skills of some of the finest craftsmen of New England have been combined to create this life-size copy in wood of the famous painting "The Last Supper" by Leonardo da Vinci.

More than a year was used in preparing the great carving—18½ feet long, 10 feet high, and made of 12 different types of wood. The carving is a masterpiece of craftsmanship, with each figure of the apostles and Jesus carved with individuality and realism. The carving is now on display in the headquarters building for the Upper Room, the world's most widely used devotional guide, in the city of New York.

Must Improve Quality Of Cow Herd

State College, Miss.—The cow-calf operator must improve the quality of his cow herd to obtain the high dollar for his market calves or steers, according to Paul F. Newell, animal husbandman of the Agricultural Extension Service.

"The man with the plain, or brindle cows did all right during the period of high cattle prices. He can continue to do so if he is alert with the marketing job," he pointed out.

To get the high dollar for calves out of plain cows, producers must market them during that period before weaning when they have the necessary bloom and the desired weight. If these calves from brindle cows go beyond that stage, they lose grade and will no longer bring the high dollar.

"When the bloom age is gone, they will sell as stockers, and fairly plain stockers at that," Calves out of plain cows, though sired by good bulls, kill to advantage when at their peak. They stand to lose several dollars a hundred weight in price after they pass the bloom stage.

For the cow-calf man who has a high grade herd, the market outlets are entirely different, Mr. Newell stated. He has many methods by which he can handle his calf crop, all of which may be profitable.

The producer with the high grade herd can sell his calves at 500 pounds as feeders when weaned. If they were started on a creep before weaning, he may continue to feed and sell as baby heaves.

Another method of handling these calves is the high grade is to run them over the winter on a strong wintering ration, then put them on top quality spring pasture and sell a strong fresher feeder or killers in the early summer. Or, at the conclusion of the spring grazing period, the producer may feed 20 bushels of corn to each steer and market these cattle as 1,000 pound choice grade steers during the fall months.

"The important point is that the calves out of the high grade herd possess that inherent breeding quality which they retain after weaning and after they lose their bloom."

Feeder cattle offer a real opportunity in the South, but the calves or yearlings offered as feeders must have real quality.

"The corn belt buyers do not want feeders of mixed breeding nor of the lower grades. They want quality cattle such as Hereford, Aberdeen-Angus or Short-horn steers. They know what kind of cattle will make good use of the high priced grain they plan to put into them," the animal husbandman explained.

Mr. Texas To Be Presented

The motion picture, "MR. TEXAS," produced by Billy Graham, internationally known Christian evangelist, will be presented for the first time in Bay St. Louis, Tuesday, March 24, at Bay High School at 7:30 p. m.

This is a color production filmed during the Billy Graham Evangelistic Crusade in Fort Worth, Texas, and centers about the conversion of Mr. Texas.

Starring in the film are western stars Cindy Walker and Reed Harper, both Hollywood actors. Interestingly, both these Hollywood stars are devout Christians themselves and have spoken to thousands about giving their lives to Christ. They have spoken all over the nation giving their testimony for the Lord.

The public is invited to this movie which will be shown next Tuesday evening. Expanding Telephone System Of State Brings Fourfold Increase In Taxes

Total More than 41 Dollars for Each of State's 246,000 Telephones in 1952

JACKSON—Taxes of more than a million dollars were paid last year on the revenue brought in by the telephone operators and others helping to operate the facilities of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in Mississippi, and on the company's expanding facilities in the state.

In pleasing these figures, Southern Bell President Fred J. Turner of Atlanta said: "We shall always want to be known as good citizens of Mississippi. Like all good citizens, we pay taxes which we like to visualize not as an entry on our books at the end of the year, but in terms of human betterment."

"We think of the taxes we pay in terms of helping to educate the children of Mississippi," he continued, "helping to provide doctors and medicine for the sick and aged in your public institutions, helping to provide places of care for the mentally sick, to provide fire and police protection and better roads which are the arteries of progress and social life."

The big tax bill for 1952 represented a fourfold gain over the telephone company's 1939 tax bill. In other words, the total taxes paid, state, county and city governments in Mississippi, along with federal taxes paid on operations in Mississippi and federal excise taxes collected in the state and turned over to the Federal authorities averaged $41.26 per telephone last year against an average of $10.86 in taxes per telephone in 1939.

Taking one-twelfth of that $41.26 annual tax figure, we find the portion of the average Mississippi's monthly telephone bill which went for taxes of all sorts each month last year was $3.44.

It should be emphasized that telephone customers as well as the telephone company shared in paying these taxes which were divided among the various governing agencies as follows:

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a powder blue suit with navy blue accessories. She carried a bride's miasal topped with a white orchid. Miss Cecil Raymond, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a maroon suit with a white carnation corsage, and Mrs. Sellers, attired in a navy blue sheer dress and a white carnation corsage, assisted the couple in receiving.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Raymond, wearing a grey dress and a white carnation corsage, assisted the couple in receiving.

Following a honeymoon on the Gulf Coast, the bridegroom will return to California for further orders. The bride will live in Bay St. Louis while he is on duty.

HAWAIIAN STATEHOOD

The House for the third time last week passed a bill authorizing that little group of islands more than 2,000 miles from the North American mainland to become the 48th State of the Union.

While there are many people in the United States who look with favor upon such a proposition we believe that ninety percent of the citizens of the 48 State of the Union would be against such a program if they took the time to acquaint themselves with the proposition. Although the House passed the bill by a substantial majority a motion to recommit the bill was barely defeated. In our judgment the issue is purely a political one and prevailed in the House simply because the politicians in both this country and Hawaii did a fine job of selling the proposition to the House Members. We truthfully do not believe that there is a total of ten members of the House who were enthusiastic about the bill. In truth and in fact the Republicans want Hawaii admitted into the Union as a state because of the additional prestige and numerical strength Hawaii is regarded as a Republican stronghold. The Democrats on the other hand, feeling that Alaska is Democratic, are constantly plugging for the addition of Alaska as a state. In this connection we spent three weeks in Alaska last fall and we never found a single Alaskan outside of the politicians who felt that Alaska's economy could sustain the financial burden of statehood.

The following table demonstrates the lack of compatibility and historical background of the different races of people in the Hawaiian Islands.

Preliminary 1950 Distribution	Percent
Total	499,800 100.00
Hawaiian and part.
Hawaiian	87,400 17.5
Caucasian	114,000 22.8
Chinese	60,000 12.0
Japanese	123,600 24.7
Other races	21,700 4.3

It is obvious therefore that the people of the United States have little in common with this conglomerate of people in the Hawaiian Islands.

But the greatest danger lies in the precedent set by taking in any island as a state not contiguous to or a portion of the North American Continent. Once the bars are let down for Hawaii then comes Alaska, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, possibly Cuba and other islands including even Guam, with the possibility later of even Japan itself. The strength of the United States lies in the fact that we have 49 contiguous states, which make up one great people. Certainly the Founding Fathers had no concept of these remote possessions ever becoming sister states with the State of the Union. It is hoped that the Senate, with the weapons of free and unlimited debate, will be able to avoid this great and tragic mistake with all of the dangerous implications involved.

Pass Christian News

by MRS. JOE ALLEN

A large meeting of the Pass Christian Garden Club was held Thursday, March 12, in the naturalistic garden of Mrs. George Smith on West Beach.

The president, Mrs. Samuel Schwing, presided. Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Mrs. Roy Capehart, Mrs. H. W. Fitzpatrick read the resignation of Mrs. Dorothy Denins as chairman of the Wild Flower Garden Project. This was accepted with regret and Mrs. Richard Hays was appointed to temporarily fill the vacancy. All members were requested to visit the site of the proposed Wild Flower Garden on city owned land, leased to the club for 25 years, and to come to the next business meeting prepared to vote on the feasibility of that site.

Mrs. John Foster was appointed head of a committee to check on other desirable locations. The object of the present project is to preserve wild flowers and shrubs native to the Gulf Coast in their natural habitat, such as open areas, woodland and bog-land; also to rebuild at some future time the cabin situated on the land for a garden center.

The publicity chairman, Mrs. Steven Jennings, thanked the following newspapers for their generous publicity, particularly covering the recent annual pilgrimage sponsored by the Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs: THE DAILY HERALD, THE SEA COAST ECHO, THE TARPON-BEACON, and the TIMES-PICAYUNE.

Mrs. J. F. Epperson, Chairman of Horticulture, in her recent report called attention to the fact that a large gladiolus bulb could be divided as one would a sweet potato.

Mrs. C. Randall Jones Jr. and Mrs. Norman S. Conroy, Chairmen of the Spring Flower Show, to be held Thursday, April 9, at Trinity Parish House gave out a list of classifications. Only members will be eligible to exhibit. One entry only in each class in each division may be entered. Entries will be received from 9:00 A. M. to 10:30 A. M. Judging will begin at 11:00 A. M. and the show will be open to the public from 2:00 p. m. until 5:00 p. m. Judges will be qualified persons and their decisions will be final.

Mrs. Joseph Arrey Jr., owner of the property at Seals Avenue and East Beach, south of the present highway, called attention to her unusual and beautiful paper tree, "amate," which was 36 in. in diameter and had been imported on a logging rig from Avery Island, La.; it is a native of Mexico. It had been admired for many years and was now in danger of being destroyed unless the local authorities agreed to allow the highway Commission to omit the cross-over where the tree is located. The Highway Commissioner agrees that the tree is not in the way of the new highway and that omitting that cross-over would save the state a considerable amount of money.

County Agent's Notes

by EDWARD SIMMONS

ORCHARD CARE

Cleaning up the peach orchard will help in controlling shuck worms, twig girdlers, scab and leaf diseases.

Knock off the trees all remaining shucks, leaves and loose branches. Then rake and burn all this material. In cultivated orchards, this material may be turned under before growth starts.

GARDENING

Now is the time to get ready for planting tender vegetables. Get your garden ready—have the rows made up and fertilize in the row. Make sure that you have plenty of insecticide on hand to control garden pests. Watch for those bugs. Don't let them harvest your garden produce.

Make second plantings of February and early March planted vegetables. Locate some good stakes for tomatoes and beans. If not growing your own, locate a supply of top quality tomato and pepper plants.

For up-to-the minute home gardening recommendations, ask your local county or home demonstration agent for a copy of Extension Publication 181, "The Year Round Home Garden."

COTTON

Have your seed cotton tested for germination before planting time. Better do it now so that you will have time to find and buy a supply of high germination planting seed just in case yours is of low germination. Don't further that a cross-over at that particular corner was unnecessary. The members unanimously voted to write the local authorities and the Highway Commission expressing their interest in saving the tree, unique to the Gulf Coast.

Following a walk through the gardens which were in full bloom, tea was served in the spacious dining-room. Mrs. C. D. Taylor poured the tea.

wait until the supply of good, high germination seed is exhausted.

Now is a good time to move mixed fertilizers to the farm. Where advisable, make use of higher mixed goods such as 12-12-12.

Solid forms of nitrogen fertilizers are scarce. Better get yours before it is too late. When used in a complete cotton program, a sufficient amount of phosphorus and potash will return 10 to 12 pounds of seed cotton.

COTTON INSECT CONTROL
A complete cotton insect control program must be carried out by Mississippi farmers in 1953 if cotton is to remain a profitable enterprise.

Farmers who have carried out a complete cotton program, including heavy fertilization, use of good cotton land and good management and who have poisoned right to ten times harvested twice as much cotton per acre as those who poisoned only one to three times.

Application on insecticides must be based on need in the field. This means that cotton producers must become more familiar with the insects, their habits and their life history, their habits and they must know how to determine when the insects are damaging cotton badly enough to require application of insecticides.

Proper application is a must. Nozzles and spouts must be adjusted to force the insecticide down into the cotton plant. Remember, insects can take all the profit out of cotton production. Don't you let them.

This Was THE FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

Choosing the right religion is a difficult and confusing problem.

And millions of people, while professing belief in God, choose no church at all.

This "neutral" attitude is not, however, a good answer to the question for any person who wants to be honest with himself. If you are among these uncertain ones, it is not a good solution for you when you stop to consider that the eternal destiny of your soul may depend upon your choice. And for anyone raising a family, the decision is a matter of special concern.

If you should decide to seek the answer, we hope that you will ask yourself this one question: "Why am I not a Catholic?"

First of all, the answer to this question will reveal, almost certainly, that your ancestors were Catholics—that your forefathers worshiped in the historic Church just as your Catholic friends and neighbors all around you are worshipping today.

It may be difficult for you to trace your "family tree" back far enough to discover when or why your forebears ceased to follow the historic Faith. It may have been in eras of oppression, when imprisonment, confiscation of property and even death were among the penalties for holding true to the Faith. Possibly it happened during the sixteenth-century revolt against the Church. Or it might have been due to a marriage outside the Church, to a lack of religious interest, or even to some disagreement which you would instantly recognize as trivial.

Perhaps your answer to all this will be that you don't care what your ancestors were... that you can choose your own religion, or do without one. But will this answer stand the test of your own common sense? We know that Christ did establish a Church to proclaim His teaching to all men—including you. We know that He commanded us to "hear the Church." We know that He promised His Church would endure to the end of time. And we know that the Catholic Church is that same Church existing through the centuries since the days of the Apostles.

A highly interesting pamphlet which will help you to see the importance of religion in your personal and family life... and help you to decide whether to reject or follow the Catholic Faith—The Faith of our Fathers. We'll gladly send it free—without any obligation. Write today—ask for Pamphlet No. KC-33.

State Gea
Disasters,

Private industry, state agencies and Civil Defense organizations throughout Mississippi are cooperating today in a program to cope with emergency and natural disasters which are more imminent to the Mississippi than the possibility of a man-made atom bomb.

Federal law only recently authorized disasters as a part of Civil Defense, but under a new law which incorporates Mississippi's plan, the Civil Defense Council has been authorized to coordinate in perfecting plans to meet emergencies.

In organizing other intergroups throughout the state, prepared for peacetime emergencies such as floods, fires, storms, the Council feels the groups can under Civil Defense be ready for wartime duty, a national emergency.

Training people to protect themselves, evacuation of camps and the care of refugees are important phases of civil defense which have been neglected in the past, but are now being emphasized in the case of other similar disasters.

Coordination of existing agencies and the planned use of respective facilities, both public and private, is already an accomplished goal in Mississippi. Benefited tremendously during excessive drought, the state as a result of the laid waste to thousands of acres of valuable timberland, destroyed millions of seedling. Yet as serious as these fires, authorities agree that it would have been much had it not been for the coordinated efforts of the various federal and private agencies throughout the state.

Mississippi's first forest fire system began with the of the State Forestry Commission 25 years ago. Since that time, state and private have established a protection which guards literally millions of acres of forests in a number of the state's 32 counties.

Towers, two-way radio, vigilant observers, battery of fire-fighting equipment, are ready at the first sign of fire to go into action. Today, the facilities of this system, including those of such private organizations as International Paper Company, Masonite, Plinko and other owners of smaller tracts, are tied into a cooperative system for fighting fires.

An excellent example of these separate though coordinated efforts was demonstrated last November when a forested section bordering Kemper and Lauderdale counties was threatened by a fire. State Forestry crews were called in to fight the fire, which had gained considerable momentum in excessively dry and hot weather. Realizing upon arrival that the fire would be needed, the crews were sent in from the north and south, and one from Lauderdale, making five crews in all.

State Geared To Meet Natural Disasters, Wartime Emergency

Private industry, state-operated agencies and Civil Defense organizations are cooperating today in a program to cope with emergencies and natural disasters which are far more imminent to the average Mississippian than the possibility of a man-made atom bomb attack.

Federal law only recently recognized natural disasters as a phase of Civil Defense, but under Mississippi's law which incorporated it more than a year ago, the State Civil Defense Council has worked closely with other organizations in perfecting plans to meet such emergencies.

In organizing other interested groups throughout the state to be prepared for peacetime emergencies such as floods, fires and storms, the Council feels that such groups can under Civil Defense be ready for wartime duty and national emergencies.

Training people to protect themselves, evacuation of casualties and the care of refugees is an important phase of civil defense which has been in effect in time of flood, fire, during severe storms or in case of other similar disasters.

Coordination of existing agencies and the planned use of their respective facilities, both state and private, is already an accomplished goal in Mississippi, which has benefited tremendously during the excessive dry season of last fall.

Fires which broke out all over the state as a result of the drought laid waste to thousands of acres of valuable timberland and destroyed millions of seedling trees. Yet as serious as these fires were, authorities agree that the toll would have been much heavier had it not been for the coordinated efforts of the various state, federal and private agencies throughout the state.

Mississippi's first forest protection system began with creation of the State Forestry Commission 25 years ago. Since that time federal, state and private interests have established a protective system which guards literally millions of acres of forests in a majority of the state's 82 counties.

Towers, two-way radio equipment, vigilant observers and a battery of fire-fighting equipment are ready at the first sign of danger to go into action. Today all protection facilities of this kind, including those of such private holdings as International Paper Company, Masontite, Flintkote, and other owners of smaller holdings are tied into a cooperative system for fighting fires.

An excellent example of how these separate though well coordinated crews work was illustrated last November when a fire in a forested section bordering on Kemper and Lauderdale counties. State Forestry crews were called to the area to fight a fire which had gained considerable headway in excessively dry underbrush. Realizing upon arrival that more crews would be needed, help was asked from the nearby Flintkote Company plant at Meridian. Two crews were sent in from Flintkote and one from Lauderdale county, making five crews in all on the scene.

Trained observers, working from state, federal and private forest fire observation towers throughout Mississippi, are on the alert today to spot not only fires in our forest but are being called into a statewide "Storm Warning System" which is designed to save lives and property under Mississippi's civil defense program.

Almost all of Mississippi's forest lands in the 82 counties today are under the protective watch of guards who like the observer shown above.

With visibility so poor that it limited organized fire-fighting methods, a private plane was called in to direct activities from the air via radio.

Another similar fire broke out on the same day in Issaquena county in the Delta, an entirely different section of the state. Forestry service crews fought the fire for 24 hours but finally had to rely on help called in from Anderson-Tully Lumber Company at Vicksburg. After unsuccessful attempts to check the blaze, radio was used to call in volunteers. Seventy-five additional men showed up, and the fire was checked on the third day with a loss of approximately 20,000 acres of timberland.

Cooperation such as illustrated in these two cases is secured regularly by the State Forestry Commission in its efforts to protect Mississippi's valuable forest lands. Soon trained observers in 145 towers maintained by the State Forestry Service, 37 towers in national forests and observation posts of private holdings will be utilized in a "Severe Storm Warning Network" for the state.

The need for such warning system is reflected in records of storm disasters since 1918. During this period an average of 33 people have lost their lives through tornadoes or severe storms each year, and only seven counties—Chattahoochee, Greene, Hancock, Jefferson Davis, Montgomery, Perry and Stone—have escaped their wrath.

Tornadoes have hit Lee County 12 times during that period, once disastrously for Tupelo; Jasper

Late Bishop Fahey Honored In Oregon's March Jubilee Program

Prayerful remembrance of the Most Reverend Leo F. Fahey, late Coadjutor-Bishop of Baker City, Oregon, is the "Intention of the Month" for March in the Jubilee program of the Most Reverend Francis P. Leipzig, Bishop of Baker.

The OREGON COLUMBIAN, published by the Oregon State Council, Knights of Columbus, carried the following article about the late Bishop Fahey.

"Bishop Fahey, who served for two years as Coadjutor to the late Bishop McGrath, was taken in death on March 31, 1950, just two weeks before the death of Bishop McGrath. His untimely passing deprived the church of an episcopal administrator of whom much was expected on the basis of his busy and fruitful life as pastor and, although briefly, as Coadjutor-Bishop.

Leo Fabian Fahey was born at Bay St. Louis, Miss., July 21, 1898. He was the son of Bartholomew and Lena Shannon Fahey, natives of Kentucky who had moved to Mississippi in the 1860's. The Church of Our Lady of the Gulf in Bay St. Louis, was the scene of all of the major events in his spiritual life: his baptism, August 14, 1898; his first communion in 1905; his ordination to the priesthood, May 29, 1926; his episcopal consecration, May 26, 1948; and the Pontifical Mass of Requiem for his soul, April 12, 1950.

"Bishop Fahey attended both the elementary and high school of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart in Bay St. Louis. He began his seminary training at St. Joseph's Preparatory Seminary in St. Benedict, La., and pursued his philosophy course at Kenrick Seminary, St. Louis. He began his study of theology at the North American College in Rome and completed it at Theological College, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.

"Bishop Fahey was the first native diocesan priest of Mississippi to be raised to the episcopacy, the consecrating prelate being the same Bishop who had ordained him, the Most Rev. Richard O. Gerow of Natchez. He received only one appointment as an assistant pastor to his native parish of Bay St. Louis, where he served for 15 years. He received only one appointment as pastor, to Sacred Heart Church, Hattiesburg. Seven busy years were his term of office there. Finally, he received but one episcopal appointment, that of Coadjutor to the Bishop of Baker.

"As pastor in Hattiesburg, Father Fahey lived a busy life and a full one. To the duties of pastor in a large and busy parish, there were added several diocesan appointments, including direction of vocational work, participation in the work of the Matrimonial Court, and secretaryship of the Infirm Priests' League. He was in constant demand as a public speaker, on both religious and secular topics, and a considerable amount of his time was consumed in directing Retreats and Days of Recollection throughout the south.

"During the second World War, the vast army post at Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, was reactivated as a military training base. Within a short time, it became one of the largest in the country. As pastor of Hattiesburg, Father Fahey inherited this huge installation as an addition to his parish when he was appointed auxiliary civilian chaplain.

In recognition of his work in this regard, he was later (on the occasion of his appointment to Baker) to be presented with a pectoral cross by Cardinal Spellman, Military Ordinary. "After coming to Oregon, Bishop Fahey continued as far as his new duties permitted, his busy career as a public speaker. Outstanding among his appearances in the West was his baccalaureate sermon during the Commencement Exercises of the University of Portland in 1949. The University, on that occasion conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

"In the fall of 1949, Bishop Fahey accompanied several other American prelates on a pilgrimage to Rome. Enroute home, he underwent major surgery in Hotel Dieu, New Orleans, and on March 31, 1950, in the midst of preparations for the pontifical ceremonies of Holy Week, he suffered a blood clot and died abruptly.

"Despite the brevity of his stay in Oregon, his colorful personality made a lasting impression on his associates. His qualities of leadership, efficiency and understanding, coupled with the widely held opinion among priests and laity of Baker that, had he lived, his accomplishments as a Bishop would have outdistanced even those of his eminently successful priesthood."

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

W. F. Bond, Director of Public Relations
State Department of Public Welfare

Increases in Grants for Old Age Assistance and Aid to the Blind in March 1953

The State Department of Public Welfare is increasing grants for the needy aged and needy blind during the month of March, 1953. After a study of the number of persons applying for help in these programs, the needs of those already on the rolls, and the amount of state and federal funds available, the Department found that there would be enough money to make needed increases to these groups.

The average grant will be increased about $2 in old age assistance and about $3 in aid to the blind in March. There are a few persons now receiving a $5 or $6 payment who will not have an increase. Persons receiving these small payments are those who have income other than public assistance to meet their needs and who consequently do not require as much welfare help.

Those persons who are already receiving the maximum payment of $30 in old age assistance or $40 in aid to the blind will continue to receive this amount. The state law limits the amount of old age assistance to $30 a month.

Thirty per cent of all old age recipients are now getting $20 a month. After the increase in March, 57 per cent will be getting $20. Twenty-three per cent of the needy blind are now getting $30 a month. After the increase in March, 30 per cent of the blind will be receiving $30.

The increase in checks will range from $1 to $4 in old age assistance, and from $1 to $6 in aid to the blind. The increases are in proportion to the needs of the recipients—those with the greater needs getting the larger increases in grant.

GI Bill For Korean Veterans Is Available

Full facilities of the Veterans Administration vocational guidance service are available to all Korean veterans eligible for education training under the Korean G. I. Bill (Public Law 550) a VA official said today.

William K. Hinds, Manager of Mississippi Veterans Administration Center, explained that vocational counseling, ordinarily considered as available only to disabled veterans, is open to all Korean veterans under Public Law 550. Korean veterans interested in taking advantage of the educational benefits should give deliberate and wise consideration to the selection of their occupational objective, their course of training and the training institution or establishments that they plan to use. They should consider what program of education or training will best fit them to follow their selected way of making a living.

The VA manager explained that the vocational counseling service is offered to assist veterans in making their decisions concerning their training programs. Vocational counseling allows a veteran to know his abilities, his interests and potential capacity to succeed in different fields of endeavor more thoroughly than otherwise would be possible.

"The vocational adviser merely serves in an advisory capacity," Hinds said. "The veteran-applicant may initially select any occupational objective under Public Law 550 regardless of whether the vocational adviser concurs in the selection. Every effort is made to cause the veteran to have a better understanding of his aptitudes, employment possibilities in different occupations, and the physical and mental demands of different occupations which are considered."

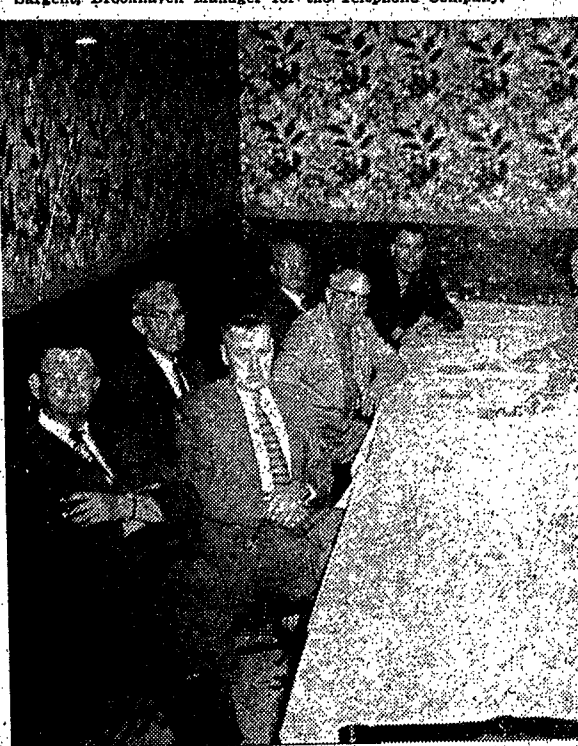

In emphasizing the importance to Korean veterans of selecting a suitable vocational objective and training program, Hinds explained that serious mistakes in making the selection may lead to a loss of some of the training benefits otherwise available. The law provides that a veteran may make only one change of objective under any circumstance. If a veteran selects an objective, enters a course of training and makes unsatisfactorily progress, he may not be allowed to take any additional training. If the facts of an unsatisfactory progress case show lack of appli-

Two Big Jobs to Provide 500 New Rural Telephones in Lincoln County

RIGHT: Brookhaven Mayor, Hon. Jewel Campbell (right) talks over the big Lincoln County rural telephone undertaking with J. M. Phillips, Southern Bell's Mississippi Manager.

BELOW: At Brookhaven meeting, plans for the big rural telephone jobs are discussed by civic leaders, state, county and municipal officials and telephone executives. Left to right in the picture are: Sam L. Wactor, Bogue Chitto; Southern Bell representative G. W. Maxwell, McComb; Manager and J. E. Sleveton, Rural Development Supervisor for Mississippi; S. D. Moore, Norfolk; W. W. Geddes, Brookhaven; Alderman; Robert E. Cannon, Lincoln County Sheriff; L. W. Simmons, Hinds; Lloyd Star School; Houston Goss, Alderman of Brookhaven; H. E. Hughes, President Brookhaven Chamber of Commerce; Paul D. Hargrave, Brookhaven Police Chief; O. L. Woodall, Arlington; Hon. Clarence McCullough, Representative Lincoln County; Hon. Ray W. Price, Lincoln County Senator; Grady Sargent, Brookhaven Manager for the Telephone Company.

BROOKHAVEN—Approximately 500 more rural telephones are assured for the rural areas of Lincoln County upon completion by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company of two large rural telephone undertakings on which actual construction is to be started soon in areas northwest of Brookhaven and around Bogue Chitto.

According to Grady Sargent, Brookhaven Manager for Southern Bell, the two projects will call for an investment of over a quarter of a million dollars. This will bring Southern Bell's investment for new and improved facilities in Lincoln County since 1945 close to the half-million dollar mark.

Between January 1, 1946 and the present date, Mr. Sargent said, the telephone company invested more than $150,000 dollars in a series of rural telephone projects which increased the rural telephones connected to the Brookhaven exchange from 69 telephones in 1945 to 634 telephones today. Completion of the two new projects will bring the total number of rural telephones in the county to more than 1,100.

Projects completed in that 7 year period covered the eastern section of the county, along U. S. Highway 84 to the communities of Fair Oaks, Fair River and Hueck's Retreat; and westward along highway 84 into Franklin County to include the Lucien and McCall Creek communities.

The wedge-shaped area of the county between these two areas, or from U. S. Highway 51 westward is to be served by one of the projects now contemplated. This area, northwest of Brookhaven, includes the communities of Caseyville, New Sight, Loyd Star and Old Red Star.

The other project, according to telephone company executives, will serve the Bogue Chitto community, extend south along highway 51 to the county line; cover territory to the east extending through the Ruth community into Lawrence county and the Verna and Jayess communities. West of Bogue Chitto, lines will reach through the Arlington and Center Point communities to the Franklin County line.

Right of way has been secured and a canvass of customers completed for the Caseyville project and construction will begin soon on this work. It will cost an estimated $100,000 dollars, serve an area of about 100 square miles and provide an additional 186 rural telephones. Plans call for completion during 1953.

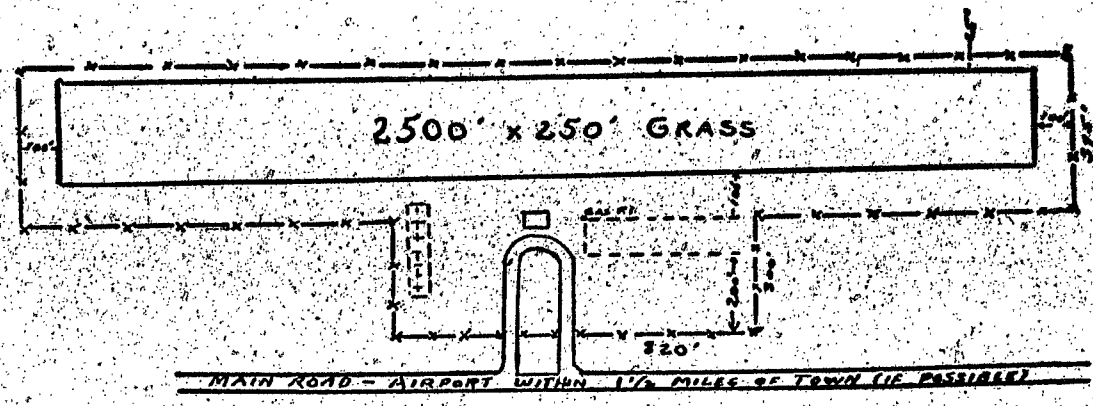

The project in the Bogue Chitto area will be one of the largest rural telephone undertakings to date in Mississippi. According to telephone company executives, it will cost an estimated $175,000 dollars, will serve an area of about 150 square miles; provide an additional 312 rural telephones. Plans call for completion late in 1953 or early in 1954.

A feature of this big project will be the new modern rural dial switching unit to be located at Bogue Chitto in the building to be constructed by F. T. Jordan for lease to the telephone company.

This new dial switching unit will be connected by trunk lines to the Brookhaven exchange and will be considered part of that exchange. The monthly rates paid by all receiving these new facilities will entitle them to an unlimited number of calls to any other subscriber connected to the Brookhaven exchange, without additional charges.

The two Lincoln County jobs are part of the overall rural telephone expansion job at which the telephone company has been working at a record-breaking rate for the past 7 years. In Mississippi alone, Southern Bell has spent more than 12 1/2 million dollars for rural telephone expansion and improvement since 1945, thereby giving our rural areas a total of 36,000 rural telephones or 4 times the number in service on January 1, 1946.

NEED FOR SMALL TOWN LANDING STRIPS EMPHASIZED BY AERONAUTICS COMMISSION

Editors note:
Following is another of a series of articles prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission designed to broaden the knowledge and interest of Mississippians in aviation. Another of the series will follow next month.

Is your town on Mississippi's air map? This new Airport Directory Map of Mississippi, recently prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission, shows the location of every airport and landing strip in the state... and tells you at a glance which of Mississippi's smaller towns are most air-minded. Plans call for completion late in 1953 or early in 1954.

"The 26 or 30 acres required for a landing strip are often donated by a civic-minded individual, substantially reducing the cost of the project," declared Moore.

In several cases, Mississippi counties have joined with progressive municipalities in the financing of landing strip construction.

Hazlehurst, Union and Bay St. Louis are examples of forward-looking communities which have, separately or jointly with their respective counties, built landing strips.

"The matter who builds it, the landing strip is an asset to any town," claims the director of the Mississippi Aeronautics Commission. "Besides the obvious advantages of stimulating interest in flying and making possible local ownership of airplanes, the small town airstrip is invaluable in disaster relief and when rare drugs, blood or other medical materials and equipment are needed immediately by desperately ill citizens," said Moore.

In illustrating this point, Moore called attention to the explosion of Texas City, the Missouri River flood and the more recent earthquake disaster in Tehachapi, California, in all of which instances light aircraft using small landing strips brought in the first relief personnel and materials and saved many lives by rapid evacuation of the injured. Light aircraft were the only means of getting relief into the Tehachapi disaster area, since roads and rail lines were rendered useless by the quake. Recalling the tornado which hit Tupelo in 1936, Director Moore warned: "IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOUR TOWN."

This Air Age has produced the flying businessman. Many firms, especially those who have plants or branch offices spread over a large area, now operate their own airplanes. Executives of these firms use these private airplanes exclusively in their business travels... on routine visits to their company's various operations, on inspection tours, etc. Use of the light planes by public utilities in pipeline or power transmission wire patrol is now widely accepted.

"Yes," declared Moore, "many large industrial and manufacturing firms now consider the availability of aircraft landing and storage facilities when choosing the site for a new plant. The landing strip at Brookhaven was a definite factor in the recent selection of that town for the new plant being built by a large manufacturer of lawn mowers."

The landing strip diagram illustrated above is designed specifically to fill the needs of the smaller towns. It can be built for little as $6,000.00. If the land is donated, it may cost even less.

Federal aid for landing strip construction, amounting to one-half the cost of land and improvements to land—such as grading, fencing, sodding and marking—and one-half the cost of administration building and road construction, has been temporarily withdrawn because of the failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds for this purpose during the period of large defense expenditures. The organization created to administer this federal aid is still intact, however, and one-half the cost of land and airstrip construction may be recovered by the builders whenever Congress again appropriates funds. The federal aid program does not participate in hazard construction.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration maintains a district Airport Engineering Office in Jackson. Its engineers are available for consultation and advice on site selection and landing strip construction.

In addition to the CAA, the Mississippi Aeronautics Commission, which has its office in the E. T. Woolfolk Building (State Office Building) in Jackson, also invites inquiries by interested parties. The commission's director recommends highly the landing strip design illustrated above as filling the needs of small towns at the lowest possible cost.

Moore, in announcing the publication of the new Airport Directory Map of Mississippi, declared: "The greatest need airportwise in Mississippi today is for landing strips near the smaller towns."

In addition to indicating the locations of every airport and landing strip in Mississippi, the new Airport Directory Map contains information on the type of facility—military, municipal, private or commercial, the status and condition of each field, and the services available at each location.

The air map of Mississippi is a valuable aid to airborne visitors as well as the air-minded natives. It may be obtained by writing to the Mississippi Aeronautics Commission, Post Office Box 5, Jackson.
